Victor N. Shaw : Career-Making in Postmodern Academia: Process, Structure, and Consequence before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Career-Making in Postmodern Academia: Process, Structure, and Consequence:

This volume examines academic careers and career-making endeavors in contemporary society. It serves as a critical forum for theoretical reflection and generalization, a thought-provoking reference for institutional innovation and reform, and a down-to-earth guide for individual learning and practice.

An interesting and scholarly review of the factors involved in becoming a college teacher and researcher today....The author presents an ethical approach to the major decisions associated with one's career. (Career Opportunities News)How I wish someone could have given me Victor N. Shaw's Career-Making in Post-Modern Academia.... It's the type of book you want to thrust into the hands of every student who sits in your office and says, 'I'm thinking of getting my Ph.D.'.... Shaw's book provides exactly the kind of insider knowledge every graduate student and faculty member must know to negotiate the often inscrutable academy...Good professional advice like this only come by way of a competent and caring mentor.... (Eric J. Anttil, Assistant Professor, College of Education, Washington State University The of Higher Education)About the AuthorVictor N. Shaw is Associate Professor of Sociology at California State University-Northridge. Professor Shaw holds a doctorate in Sociology from the University of Hawaii-Manoa.
